DOMESTIC VIOLENCE SURVIVORS' PRIMARY NEEDS

Whether survivors of violence are able to leave an abusive situation or call to get more information about the variety of resources available, their needs are complex and deserve on-going support. In order to meet these needs, the Florida Domestic Violence Hotline connects survivors to local certified domestic violence centers for direct services and community referrals.

During this reporting period, advocates answering the Florida Domestic Violence Hotline discussed 14,979 domestic violence related needs with survivors.

PROFILE OF HIGHEST REQUESTED NEEDS:

40% of survivors requested information and referrals on local or statewide domestic violence services and systems.

24% of survivors requested domestic violence emergency shelter.

6% of survivors requested information about support groups in which they could participate.

5% of survivors requested information specific to receiving an Injunction for Protection.

5% of survivors requested domestic violence counseling. Domestic violence counseling includes individual crisis counseling with an advocate.

5% of survivors identified a need for other legal services including divorce, child custody, and housing rights.

4% of survivors requested additional safety planning from a local domestic violence center after speaking with an advocate.

2% of survivors requested information regarding relocation assistance.

2% of survivors identified a need for additional advocacy related to their situation. Advocacy may include communication on a survivor's behalf with community partners, courthouse advocacy, or other programs offered by a certified domestic violence center.

Safety Planning

Advocates on the Florida Domestic Violence Hotline provide emergency safety planning including the following:

Immediate Phone Safety / Communications

This includes considerations for the survivor's immediate safety while on the hotline such as safety strategies that address concerns related to GPS/tracking devices, cellular devices, computers or other communications devices.

Emotional Support

This includes considerations for emotional well-being and use of support networks while in or leaving an abusive relationship.

Going to Shelter

This includes the development of a plan to safely enter shelter, such as considerations of what to bring to shelter and how to reach the confidential location.

Leaving the Relationship

This includes safety strategies for when the survivor may be leaving the relationship and danger increases.

Financial

This includes safety strategies related to financial concerns. Advocates explore access to financial resources, bank accounts and a plan for economic security.

During a Violent Situation

This includes the review of safety strategies a survivor may use if the abuser uses violence while in the home.

Changing Routes and Schedules

This includes the development of safety strategies that address an abuser's pattern of stalking and/or exhibiting harassing behaviors.

HIGH CALL VOLUME MAP

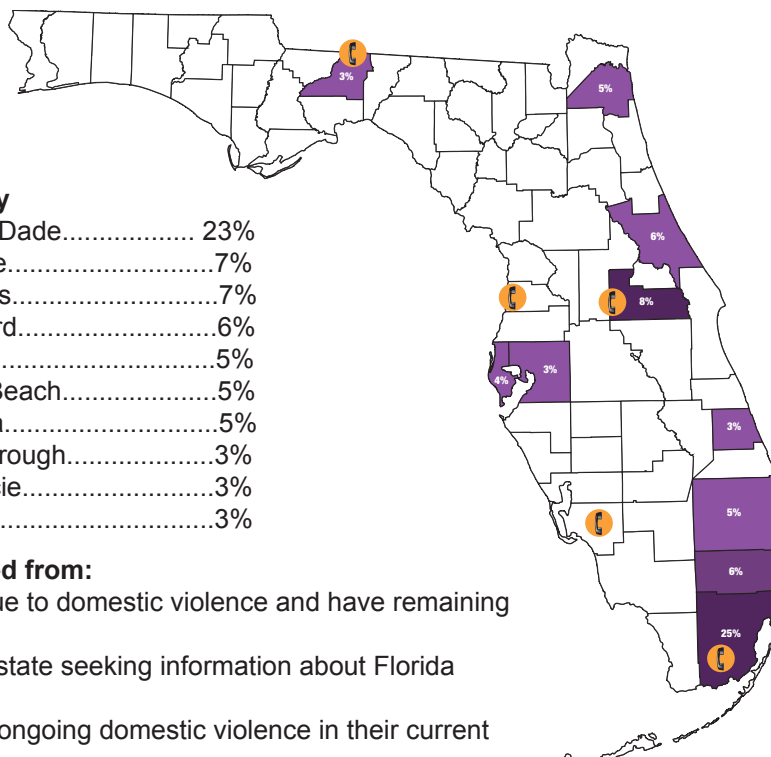

97% of the calls received on the Florida Domestic Violence Hotline came from within the State of Florida.

Out of state calls (3%) were received from:

- survivors who have fled the state due to domestic violence and have remaining service needs in Florida
- friends or family calling from out-of-state seeking information about Florida resources
- survivors seeking relocation due to ongoing domestic violence in their current location
